

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

floats above the heads of children, and we doubt whether the letters that passed between the Plymouth Rock and the Duxbury Tree, and the discourse held by the Rock and Tree concerning whigs and tories, will contribute much to edify and improve juvenile readers. In short, if we are not deceived, this performance betrays a hand capable of much higher things than are here achieved or attempted, and we should be glad to see the results of its skill in some work of wider scope and sustained interest, conceived with deliberation, and finished with care.

---

In the article on the Common Law, in our last number, (p. 423, line 16 from top,) there was an accidental omission. The following sentence should be inserted near the end of that line. 'Goodright no sooner enters into possession, than he is forcibly dispossessed by Richard Thrustout. Goodright then sues Thrustout,' &c.

---

Want of room makes it necessary for us to defer, to another number, reviews of Redwood, of Professor Everett's Oration before the Phi Beta Kappa Society, of Butler's Reminiscences, of Brown's Lectures, and articles on the Insurrection of Tupac Amaru, in South America, and on the Code Napoleon.

---